Part 1: Telemedicine Post COVID-19: Hospital at Home and Expansion of Technology

COVID-19 has served as a catalyst across healthcare innovation and delivery. The pandemic has accelerated the digitization and virtualization of healthcare from telemedicine to remote patient monitoring, with long-term implications for more continuous, proactive, personalized, anytime, anywhere, health and medicine, increasingly moving from the hospital to the home. In this session, Dr. Daniel Kraft, who chairs the XPRIZE Pandemic Alliance TaskForce and is the founder of Exponential Medicine, will explore what is merging and coming next in prevention, diagnostics, and therapy, as well as its implications for hospital systems and providers.

Part 2: Diversity and Inclusion: Moderated Q&A Session

In 2020, Kim Blue joined Zoom as the Global Head of People Experience Partners, where she leads the company's worldwide team of HR business partners. Leading diversity and inclusion efforts at some of today's top brands, she built a collective understanding that inclusion allows for all perspectives to have a place at the table that is not conditioned by agreement or being like-minded. Blue believes when diversity and inclusion are part of the culture of any organization, there is the opportunity to step beyond the shore of diversity and really explore the ocean that is inclusion. That ocean is filled with so much possibility if we are willing to be vulnerable, humble, and explore.

Part 3: Supply Chain Excellence in the Post-Pandemic World

It's time for hospitals to put more focus and attention on supply chains and materials management. Supply chain excellence can coexist with, and support, the clinical excellence and patient experience goals that all hospitals strive to achieve. In this presentation, supply chain expert Mark Graban will share lessons and best practices from his experience with a world-class supply chain in the computer industry and also from leading health systems. He will explore proven ideas and methods that can help participants better prepare for the next pandemic.

Part 4: The Emotional Impact of COVID-19: Leading Your Team and Culture Past the Collective COVID PTSD to an Emotionally-Healthy Workplace

2020 highlighted our individual and collective strengths and weaknesses. We learned that our mental and physical capacity is great. We also learned that more than ever, we need workplace cultures and leadership that are supportive, agile, and responsive to developing and strengthening the emotional wellbeing of its employees. In this presentation, learn how to shift to leadership behaviors and practices that help increase organizational and individual resilience and emotional sustainability to move away from the collective post-COVID PTSD experience to one of deeper capacity, connection, and organizational strength.

Part 5: Rural Healthcare Delivery in Recovery

Tying community engagement to diversity and health equity, Benjamin Anderson explores true stories of the amazing resiliency of rural communities amidst the formidable challenges of a pandemic. He will share the lessons learned through many interviews with rural health leaders and patients resulting in the successful development of a post COVID-19 nationally-released toolkit and playbook called Re-Imagining Leadership: A Pathway for Rural Health to Thrive in a COVID-19 World that was created in partnership with the Farley Health Policy Center. His empathetic and informative message will inspire and empower health leaders across the United States to align their efforts into inclusive coordinated strategies, leading to healthier care staff, patients, and communities.
